Col. Frederick H. Dyer, Westerly

Has Just Completed Important War History—Town Wants Missionary Smith Back—Local Interest in Man with the Marrying Habit—Effort to Redeem $5 Note Chewed Up by Pup.

The present will be a busy week politically in Rhode Island, paying the way for the annual state election next Tuesday. Governor Pothier is booked for a speech every night and also on next Monday when he will close the campaign in Woonsocket. There will be no public rallies in Westerly, the town being so overwhelmingly republican that the campaign managers consider it a waste of political energy to send speakers here.

The only political demonstration will be the annual dinner of the Young Men's Republican club in the Dixon house, Thursday night at which speakers of prominence will explain the political situation in town and state. This dinner will be a measure to be an informal affair, and open to voters in Rhode Island and Connecticut, the limit being the capacity of the dining room in the Dixon house.

The only local political move that has been made public is the letter of Judge Thomas H. Peabody accepting the prohibition nomination for representative to the state legislature, in which his position is plainly defined. He modestly states his age and experience as a lawyer, if elected, would entitle him to a position on the judiciary committee, where he could be of valuable service to the town of Westerly. That is one reason why he believes he should be elected over any other candidate, as he is the only one not qualified for position on that important committee.

Gen. Frederick H. Dyer of Des Moines, Iowa, was a visitor at the Westerly public library, Monday. As a boy he ran away from the William H. Dyer academy, walked to Hartford and enlisted in the Seventh Connecticut infantry, as a drummer boy, at the age of twelve years. He enlisted under the name of Frederick H. Dyer, and served from July 25, 1862, to July 20, 1863. After the war he resided in Philadelphia, where he was department commander of the Pennsylvania department, Grand Army of the Republic. He has held various other honorary positions with patriotic societies.

For forty years he has been a collector of statistics and is a compendium of military information. For the past five years he has devoted himself entirely to the preparation of a Compendium of the War of the Rebellion, which he has just completed.

Colonel Dyer left Westerly for Norwich by way of New London, on his way to New Britain, where he will be the guest of Postmaster Hicks, a comrade in the Seventh Connecticut. He is making a pleasant tour after his long and confining stay at work and renewing war time acquaintances.

Miss Sarah J. Swain of Shogwagan, Me., although disappointed in her joy in not having become the wife of Thomas J. Carson of Leicester, Mass., if what has been printed in relation to Carson is true, Miss Swain is sister of Prof. John H. Swain, principal of the Westerly high school, and his sister has been visiting at his home in Jay street. A Worcester dispatch to the New York Herald of Sunday, said:

BRIEF STATE NEWS

Avon.—Chester Randolph Woodford of this place, 35 years old today (Tuesday).

Yaleville.—Rev. Francis Bartlett, a former Episcopal minister, is now finally located in Mitchell, S. D.

Milldale.—Through the generosity of the Clark Brothers' Bolt company the house here is being piped for gas.

Waterbury.—The attendance at the high school this year is the largest in the history of the institution. Over 750 pupils are enrolled.

Milford.—Ansantaw Lodge, A. F. No. 4, observed its fiftieth anniversary with appropriate ceremonies Friday evening.

Bridgeport.—Stanley Steinhardt has returned from a three months' visit in Chicago. He made the trip both ways on a motorcycle.

Meriden.—In memory of Rev. Robert Clarkson Tongue the parishioners of All Saints' Episcopal church will dedicate a tablet next Sunday with special services.

Wallingford.—Wallingford grange will have an enjoyable evening on Nov. 18, when Prof. A. T. Henry speaks on "Recollections of Michigan and Its Fruit Farms."

Torrington.—It cost the no-license league of Torrington the sum of $23.34 to have its cause defeated at the polls at the recent town election, Oct. 4, by a majority of 323 votes.

New Haven.—Frederick W. Orr of New Haven has been invited by the Elks of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., to attend the memorial exercises of their lodge, to be held the first Sunday in December, and deliver the memorial address.

Southport.—Dorothy Ripley chapter, D. A. R., has secured Miss Charlotte Molyneux Holloway of New London, the noted historic lecturer, to give a lecture on the Colonial and Revolutionary times Thursday night in the Southport library.

Ansonia.—The annual meeting of Ansonia branch of the Sunday school commission of the diocese of Connecticut, held in small places the past house Friday. Rev. George W. Davenport of Danbury delivered an address on "Lessons Preparation."

Valuable Man.
The Connecticut Historical society has received from Frederick Comstock of East Hartford a manuscript kept by Christopher Comstock, his ancestor, who was a soldier in the French and Indian war. The period covered is from September 8, 1758, to November of the same year, and from July 2 to November 20, 1759. It seems probable that the diary as Mr. Comstock left it covered a longer period of time and that portions of it have been lost or destroyed.

Professor Dutcher III.
Professor George M. Dutcher, head of the Wesleyan department of history, is still in the Middlesex hospital, and his condition does not improve. The faculty administration has therefore decided to secure the services of Professor Leonard of Yale to take charge of the history courses until Professor Dutcher is able to resume his work in the university.

Successful Liquor Raid—Decision for Plaintiff in Kemp-Silk Case.

Deputy Sheriff Helm and Constable Hayes raided a place kept by Michele Senare on the Tolland road Saturday night and secured three kegs of beer and a small quantity of whiskey. The search warrant was issued by Prosecuting Agent M. D. O'Connell. The proprietor will be prosecuted for violating the liquor laws.

Judge Heald has given his decision in the case of Carmine Kemp against Frank Silk, tried in the borough court last Thursday. The verdict is for the plaintiff in the sum of $27.46.

M. E. Sullivan of Wilmamantic was in town on business Monday.

The town school committee held a meeting at the library Monday afternoon.

The prevalence of whooping cough among the children is responsible for the small attendance in some of the schools.

Edward L. Dinwiddie has had the small building which he put up adjoining the Roberts block covered with metal to comply with the order of the court of burgesses.
